Born in Paris in 1980 and passionate about design and architecture since an early age. Graduated in 2005 from Camondo School in Paris with a joint bachelors degree in interior design and product design. Equally as interested in the project as in its communication, he has worked in various types of company; from graphic design through to architecture and interior design. In 2001, he worked on a graphic and architectural project in Pantin, France, with Paul Chemetov Practice. In 2003, he took the role of assistant designer for Eric Carlson and David McNulty on the Louis Vuitton Japanese stores design department, responsible for the LV flagship at Roppongi in Tokyo, Japan, which opened in September 2003. In 2005, he worked for the Primal Art Museum in Paris with Les Ateliers Jean Nouvel. Started his international career in October 2005, working for Building Design Partnership in London, where his various projects included shopping centers, offices and a library. In November 2007, he joined Llewelyn Davies Yeang, « deep green architecture » where he worked on the GOSH hospital in London, the Malaysian Airline Lounge (MAS) at London's Heathrow Airport, on a residential project in Kazakhstan and on Broomfield Hospital in Essex, UK. He is currently working for Carbondale in Paris on luxurious projects as Longchamp stores all around the world, Tag Heuer on outstanding facades stores and a shopping centre in Sao Paulo, Brazil.
